

push'n'funk

This Styrian band, first formed in 2002 have continued to utilize their native tongue as a colourful lyrical medium to convey meaning and attitude across a range of genres. Their songs cover a vast spectrum of styles from funk to reggae, folk to blues, classic rock to jazz and are laced with psychedelic and progressive facets to create a truly contemporary sensation. Push'n'funk aims for musical diversity and unorthodoxy which is achieved by maintaining an attitude of independence and autonomy. Radio compatibility is not an aspiration of the band and does not sacrifice to the frivolous demands of mainstream pop.

In 2007, Push'n'funk released their first self titled album which included twelve tracks. In 2010, 'Funkstille' (which literally translates to 'radio silence') was released and contains slightly heavier and more experimental elements. Reaching the finals in the 40th Newcomer Band Contest by Vojo Radkovic drew the media's attention to the band and is the perfect kick-off for their upcoming 'Funkstille' Tour.
